LIFE-CHANGING SOLUTIONS FOR PATIENTS

More than 50 million people are missing all of their teeth from one or both of their dental arches. Unfortunately, dentures worn to replace those teeth may cause chewing and speech problems, definitive jawbone loss, overall poor health and, subsequently, a shortened life span. But thanks to the state-of-the-art dental implant treatment options

“Dental implants provide the look, feel and function of natural teeth while maintaining overall health and well-being.”

offered by Drs. Fred and Rebecca Bye at The Center for Advanced Periodontics & Implantology, patients can greatly improve their quality of life, overall wellness and psychological health.

“There is a definitive correlation with patients’ health and life span with their dental health,” says Dr. Rebecca Bye. Statistics show that those without teeth have more disease and shorter life spans. Dental implants can help reverse that tendency by enhancing chewing ability and nutrition, as well as improving speech and maintaining facial aesthetics. “Implant prostheses can often offer a more predictable treatment course than traditional restorations, maintain bone and reduce the bulk of normal dentures,” Dr. Bye continues. “We can design teeth to be a bridge cemented in place or an appliance that is easily snapped into place. Dental implants provide the look, feel and function of natural teeth while maintaining overall health and well-being.”

With more than 39 years’ combined experience, Drs. Fred and Rebecca Bye have been innovators in dental implantology and are dedicated to excellence. Both earned Master of Science degrees in periodontology at the University of Michigan,
